The mission of generationOn is to inspire, equip, and mobilize youth to take action that changes the world and themselves through service. Educators, parents, community organizations, and youth themselves will find free resources needed to ignite the power and potential of young people to become leaders and problem solvers, successful students and active community members through service. The generationOn website has no cost resources for many audiences that include age-appropriate issue area project ideas, instructions, how-to guides for K-12 youth, in addition to, service-learning resources, school and clubs programs, and online service and service-learning trackers for educators and teens. www.generationOn.org

Why Philanthropy Education and the Benefits of Service-Learning -Service-Learning is a teaching and learning strategy that combines real-world application of academic skills/content with service to the community

- Students exhibit more charitable beliefs, attitudes, and behaviors
- Builds ownership and “Why Serve?” of service-learning
- Gives a deeper purpose for learning – students recognize talents and skills to “make a difference”
- Increases student motivation to attend school
- Improves school culture
- Community sees youth as an asset rather than a liability
- Practice different habits of life-long philanthropy
- Broadens perspectives or career opportunities
- Develops critical thinking and leadership skills
